NEW BUSINESS

A. Discussion about Revising the Public Art Advisory Committee Guidelines

(Currently there are 2 community members out of 6 to 7 Committee members (the Guidelines provide Parks and Recreation Commission may have 2 or 3 members). The Guidelines could be revised to add on an additional community member, or 1 of the 3 members of the Parks and Recreation Commission could be deleted and a third community member added so that the number of members would be 7.)

City Manager Holstine reported that Council gave direction to add this agenda item in hopes of revising the Public Art Implementation Guidelines to potentially appoint a third community member to the Public Art Advisory Committee.

City Manager Holstine added that if the Council wanted to keep the number of Public Art Advisory Committee members to seven, then the representative members of the Parks and Recreation Commission could remain at two members, the City Council representatives could remain at two members and the appointed community members could be increased from two members to three members.

After some City Council questions, Kevin Fryer, current Park and Rec Commissioner, agreed that keeping the representatives of the Park and Recreation Commission to two members in the Public Art Advisory Committee is a good idea.

After further City Council discussions and questions of City Staff and Commissioner Fryer, CM O'Connell, CM Cunningham, and CM Davis agreed that the Public Art Advisory Committee should be comprised of three community members, two members from the City Council, and two members from the Parks and Recreation Commission. Also, the Public Art Advisory Committee members should also make up the membership of the Public Art Selection Committee.

CM Davis added that the Public Art Selection Committee should be comprised of the members of the Public Art Advisory Committee plus two invited community members who live near the potential location of the Public Art site.

After some City Council questions and discussion, Administrative Services Director was directed to draft the proposed changes to the Public Art Implementation Guidelines for Council to review and discuss at the next City Council Meeting.
